

CALIFORNIA SAFE FROM STARVATION

Danger of famine or food shortage in California, Alameda county and Oakland, as the result of a national railroad strike, is a negligible quantity, according to local grocers and food supply men. That California could be starved of its staple people in the event of a strike of lengthy duration was the consensus of opinion, although it was held that certain luxuries and commodities obtained from the east would disappear after a few weeks.

"California is able to produce enough for Californians," said E. S. Hogan, secretary of the Alameda County Retail Grocers' Association. "Of course, certain cereals, package goods and canned wares obtainable from eastern sources will be gone after a while, but we produce certain cereals of our own right close to our homes here; can certain fruits and vegetables close by, and, in general, should be able to live very comfortably, though not extravagantly, while the strike is in progress."

"Potatoes, beans, rice, flour, salt and the other actual necessities are here for the asking. Within our own neighborhood we have enough to supply our immediate needs. Canned soups, beans, vegetables, and the like, imported from the east, will be with us for a few weeks, but will disappear. Yes, Alameda county and the bay cities need not worry over the food situation. We are fortunate in that we raise enough to eat."

D. H. Mathes, an executive of the Sunset Grocery Company, echoed Hogan's statements.

CALIFORNIA INDEPENDENT. Alameda county truck farmers will have enough varieties to supply the demand here, and the other foodstuffs will be in large enough quantity to assure the population against hardship.

It means, though, the disappearance of luxuries with the California and American in general depend upon. Breakfast foods from the east will find their substitutes—excellent ones, too—from this very district. We shall get along all right, indeed, here. Only we must use discretion in selecting our food."

H. D. Cushing, among other food supply men, thought that the strike would bring about a similar condition to what is existing at present with foreign luxuries out of the market.

The war has precluded importation of goods from France, Germany, Switzerland and other nations in Europe. We have gotten along without them for many months now, and shall continue getting along without them for some time to come.

"It will amount to the same thing if this strike becomes assured. For a time there will be enough canned, package and ordinary goods from the East on hand, but after a bit, this supply must be augmented by further shipment, will disappear."

"So long as California crops continue there will be no hardship. And we look for a handsome series of crops this year. Eggs, chickens, hams, bacon and meats will disappear. But our own ranges will produce enough meat and Nevada herds may be driven into this state if demand becomes too great."

MAKING OWN GOODS. "The war stopped all shipment of Swiss cheese. We began making our own Swiss cheese. We are making Swiss cheese and filling the demand. We can do the same with everything else, if given enough time. But the state, county and city are assured of enough life necessities."

While the preparation made against a strike of Eastern railroads, company officials here are centering efforts on making possible the continuation of service in event of a railroad strike.

Although the strike is scheduled to start in the East tonight, it is not expected to reach Oakland before Wednesday night. In view of that fact the embargo orders on perishable freight have been extended, allowing the acceptance of shipments from Portland, Ogden, Deming and El Paso, if they can reach their destinations by Tuesday night. The Key Route ferry and electric system today announced that it will use extra trains and boats to handle the commuter traffic and will honor Southern Pacific commutation tickets in the event of a strike.

It is not expected there will be much difficulty in getting mails to this coast, as the fast mail train, Council Bluffs, Ia., that brings the mail will be in operation at any event.

WILSON MAKES APPEAL TO RAIL MEN FOR PEACE

I DEEM it my duty and right to appeal to you in this time of national peril to open again the questions at issue between the railroads and their operators with a view to accommodation and settlement.

With my approval, a committee of the Council of National Defense is about to seek a conference with you with that end in view.

A general interruption of the railway traffic of the country at this time would entail a danger to the nation against which we have the right to enter my most solemn and earnest protest.

It is now the duty of every patriotic man to bring matters of this nature to a peaceful accommodation. The safety of the country against manifest perils affecting its own peace and the peace of the whole world makes a peaceful settlement absolutely imperative and seems to me to render any other choice of action inconceivable.—Wilson's appeal to the railroads and their employees.

ORDER AWAITED BY WESTERN R. R. MEN

CHICAGO, March 17.—Western trainmen's representatives, gathered in Chicago to await the flash that is expected to send them out on strike, had practically abandoned hope today of any agreement being reached in the mediation meeting in New York. They were busy preparing for the inauguration of the strike at 6 o'clock this evening. Railroad officials were still hopeful. But at the same time they were preparing to meet any situation that might arise. The roads were depending almost exclusively on the possibility that the men would refuse to obey the brotherhood call. They were encouraged in this belief by the fact that 2000 switchmen, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor but not with the brotherhoods, will remain at work.

The police of Chicago have mapped out plans to guard railway property in case of trouble.

Private detective agencies here, usually employed in strike crises, claimed today that between 3000 and 4500 experienced railroad men available to hurl into the breach within twelve hours, should a strike be declared. But they have received no orders from the brotherhoods.

A card index system, with names, home addresses and in most cases the nearest telephone number, is kept by the secret operatives. The men include engineers, firemen, conductors and other railroad men down to engine wipers.

"We have the same system in New York, Detroit, Cincinnati, Buffalo and other cities, and within 20 minutes after notification can start batches of fifty men to break the strike," said the head of one agency. "We have been working day and night for an emergency, but believe there will be no strike at present."

Officials of Western railroads continued preparations today to keep their lines in operation despite the strike, order scheduled to take effect at 6 o'clock (central time) tonight. An embargo has been placed on freight by virtually every Western railroad, though officials announce that efforts will be made to forward goods with as little delay as possible. In the switching yards, where the strike has been called for tonight, preparations have been made to handle both passenger and freight traffic with limited crews.

TO USE STRIKEBREAKERS. St. Louis, Mo., March 17.—That railroads coming into and running out of St. Louis are planning to operate their passenger trains with strikebreakers was learned today.

More than 600 strikebreakers have been in the railroad yard for two days in St. Louis, it is estimated. If the strike against the Terminal Railroad Association is called at 6 o'clock tonight, the strikebreakers will be put on passenger trains immediately. No attempt will be made to move freight.

At the Terminal offices today there was every show of confidence that the companies would be able to keep passenger trains moving in and out of the union station.

U. S. TO KEEP EYE ON SPECULATORS DURING R. R. ROW

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE LEADS WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

CHICAGO, March 17.—With a nation-wide railroad strike but a few hours off, federal authorities today took prompt action to prevent speculation in "food hogs" that threatens to add to the misery of millions.

Returning from a conference with Attorney General Gregory, Robert W. Childs, special assistant attorney-general, went before a grand jury with a mass of evidence tending to show a conspiracy among food speculators. At the same time, Hinton G. Clabaugh, head of the local department of justice, appealed to grocers to aid the government in the war against speculation, and men who attempt to take advantage of the strike situation to boost food prices. Childs promised that commission men found guilty of such practices would be prosecuted to the full limit of the law.

Michigan Central Is Exempted in Order

CLEVELAND, March 18.—From an authoritative source it is learned that the strike order affecting the New York Central lines does not include the Michigan Central system running into Canada, and that no strike is contemplated on the Michigan Central at present.

NEW YORK, March 17.—It was explained here that when the eight-hour movement was begun and representatives of the four brotherhoods went into Canada for the purpose of soliciting support in the Dominion, the Canadian government warned the brotherhoods that no action would be taken of a strike movement would be permitted during the war.

CANCEL LIMITED SERVICE. BOSTON, March 17.—The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad's Knickerbocker Limited, due to leave for New York at 1 p. m., and the Merchants Limited, scheduled for 6 p. m., were cancelled on account of the strike situation. The last parlor car from Boston for the present was attached to the train leaving at 10:05 a. m.

'RAIL STRIKE AID TO ENEMY: CALVIN TO ENEMY: CALVIN REPORTED DEAD

OMAHA, Neb., March 7.—President E. E. Calvin of the Union Pacific Railroad has issued the following statement:

"In connection with the threat of a general railroad strike at this time the question arises, is some power shrewder and more astute than the brotherhood leaders back of the plan to precipitate a transportation tie-up at this time and establish in this country a condition which, to the minds of our enemies in Europe, may be like a revolt against our government."

"I am in hearty sympathy with Ellisha Lee, chairman of the National Conference Committee of the railroads, who has called attention to the fact that the serious international situation should cause every citizen to put every thought of personal right or desire second to his duty to his country."

"In a letter addressed to President Wilson, some days ago, the brotherhood leaders gave assurance that in case of war they would render every possible assistance to the government."

"They have overlooked the fact that in many ways a railway strike in this country would be worth more to our enemies than it would be to many battles for the reason that it would paralyze and stagnate all our resources; and even if the strike be called off should war be declared, the strike tie-up would have such a congestion of freight in the terminals and on the sidings that weeks and probably months would be required to get this congestion cleaned up before the railroads could be in normal running condition again."

GIVE ENEMY ADVANTAGE. "This would mean that the movement of troops would be seriously interfered with and the movement of necessary supplies and munitions so seriously interrupted as to give our enemies a tremendous advantage."

"A day or two ago an officer of a navy said: 'A railway strike for even two days would be a serious blow to the national welfare at this critical time. We must keep the fleet fully coalled and equipped with other supplies to suppress any popular outbreak.' Mr. Roddichey has been prominent in Duma affairs since the Russian parliament was created. He has been a vigorous advocate of the rights of the Jews."

SON'S DEATH REPORTED. BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEADS WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

PETROGRAD (via London), March 17.—The autocracy which has held Russia in its grip since the beginning of history fell today. The house of Romanoff, which has ruled the empire for 400 years, came to an end with the abdication of Nicholas II, the weakest of his line. Tonight the death of the little son of the emperor, whose abdication was included in that of his father, was rumored.

After the abdication, the crowds in the streets secured ladders, and began to tear the imperial insignia from the winter palace and the front of buildings on the main thoroughfare. The old empire literally lay in dust.

In anticipation of the new bigger crowds than ever filled the halls and grounds of the palace, the waiting official confirmation by the Duma committee of the rumors which had excited the people to fever pitch during the last twenty-four hours. When the news of the fall of the empire came, the committee rooms, crowded with working men from the balcony of the palace suddenly interrupted their discussion and broke into a roar of cheers such as never before had been heard in those stately halls continued until the men and women were forced to cease from their shouting.

Just what form the new government will assume is indefinite. For the moment entire authority rests with the twelve members of the executive committee, the cabinet headed by Prince Lvov, who, according to some forecasts, will be president of a new republic. It is believed that in the interim and until the convocation of a constituent assembly, power will slowly pass into the hands of the new cabinet, which will then present the anomaly of a new government without a supreme head.

It was the general conviction when the revolution began that it had been provoked by the government, working through the medium of the police, and that the government had decided upon this daring expedient as the means of completing its previous efforts to tie up the industrial activity of the country and bring the war operations to a complete standstill. But the force which set in motion and which first appeared easy to control, drawing to itself all the discordant elements of the country which were threatening an opportunity to revolt, soon became so tremendous that it was impossible to hold.

TEMPORARY AUTHORITY. A despatch received direct from Petrograd last night, filed at 5:30 o'clock Petrograd time, said Czar Nicholas had abdicated in favor of Grand Duke Michael, and that at 2:30 o'clock yesterday the emperor, the Grand Duke himself had abdicated, thus bringing the Romanoff dynasty to an end.

Advices direct from Petrograd yesterday stated that there had been some difference of opinion between the Duma leaders and the representatives of the workingmen. The latter wished to leave undecided the question of the form of government until after the holding of a constitutional assembly, whereas, the Duma group, fearing dangers to the country in the absence of a definite government, had put forward the program of a regency under the Grand Duke.

The qualifications which Michael is reported to have placed on his acceptance of the throne indicate that it has been decided to erect a temporary central authority so that there may be no interruption of the country's energies in prosecuting the war, but at the same time the ultimate decision has been left with the people.

PROTOPPOFF SOUGHT PEACE. LONDON, March 17.—The Russian revolution came at a most opportune moment for the Entente, according to a despatch from the Telegraph Company which stated that Minister of the Interior Protopopoff had already negotiated for a separate peace for Russia.

Protopopoff had long been accused by the Russian people of duplicity in traitorous negotiations with Germany.

PETROGRAD, March 17.—Estimates today placed the number of killed and injured by the police on Saturday and Sunday at 300. This was really before the actual revolt started and the casualties were in small riots over the city. After Sunday the number killed and wounded that that government will receive the recognition of the United States.

Only very brief despatches are coming through from Ambassador David Francis at Petrograd. Officials say that this undoubtedly is because of the great difficulty of communication between Petrograd and Washington, because, because of this fact, today are congratulating themselves that they have a strong man of the Francis type at the Russian capital. He will be compelled to meet many trying problems on his own initiative during the period of reconstruction, and officials say that in doing so he will at all times have the complete confidence of President Wilson.

SEATED FOR REPUBLIC. PETROGRAD (via London), March 17.—Unless improbable events occur, Russia has today become a republic. The outcome depends on how the manifesto of the new government is received by the six million soldiers at the front.

The government, pending a meeting of the Constitutional Assembly, vested in the executive committee of the Duma and the newly-chosen council of ministers. A manifesto to this effect was issued by the Duma committee yesterday and was telegraphed to the general army headquarters.

FINLAND GOVERNOR JAILLED. LONDON, March 17.—The Finnish general-governor of Finland, has been arrested by the commander of the Baltic fleet, on the order of the provisional government, according to a despatch from Petrograd. Senator Borovitchoff, vice-president of the economic department of the Finnish senate, has also been arrested.

Rodditcheff, leader of the constitutional committee in the Duma, has been appointed minister for Finland and directed to proceed at once to Helsinki.

Governor Zein has been governor of Finland since November, 1909, and has been noted for the drastic methods he has used to suppress any popular outbreak. Mr. Rodditcheff has been prominent in Duma affairs since the Russian parliament was created. He has been a vigorous advocate of the rights of the Jews.

NEW RUSSIAN CABINET OUTLINES ITS POLICIES

PETROGRAD, March 17.—Following a series of conferences between the new ministry members, who have assumed office under the provisional government in Russia, the following appeal to the people, outlining the policy of the cabinet and promising universal suffrage, the convocation of a constitutional assembly and abolition of social, religious and national restrictions, has been issued:

Citizens: The executive committee of the Duma, with the aid and support of the garrison of the capital and its inhabitants, has succeeded in triumphing over the obnoxious forces of the old regime in such a manner that we are able to proceed to a more stable organization of the executive power, with men whose past political activity assures them the country's confidence.

The new cabinet will base its policy on the following principles:

FIRST—An immediate general amnesty for all political and religious offenses, including terrorist acts and military and agrarian offenses.

SECOND—Liberty of speech and of the press; freedom of alliances, unions and strikes, with the extension of these liberties to military officials within the limits admitted by military requirements.

THIRD—Abolition of all social, religious and national restrictions.

FOURTH—To proceed forthwith to the preparation and convocation of a constitutional assembly, based on universal suffrage, which will establish a governmental regime.

FIFTH—The substitution of police by a judicial system, with chiefs to be elected and responsible to the government.

SIXTH—Communal elections to be based on universal suffrage.

SEVENTH—The troops which participated in the revolutionary movement will not be disbanded, but will remain in Petrograd.

EIGHTH—While maintaining strict military discipline for troops on active service, it is desirable to abrogate for soldiers all restrictions in the enjoyment of social rights accorded other citizens.

The provisional government desires to add that it has no intention to profit by the circumstances of the war to delay the realization of the measures above mentioned.

KROPOTKIN TELLS CAUSES OF REVOLT

BRIGHTON, England, March 17.—Prince Peter Kropotkin, the aged Russian exile, who many years ago attained international fame because of the revolutionary stand he took on the side of the people of his country, received a "correspondent of the Associated Press" in his home here and gave his views on why the army joined in the revolt in Petrograd.

"The agricultural population, feeling that there was no security in the life of the country, refused to bring provisions to the city, and the army began to feel that the support it had received from the very outset of the war from the whole of the Russian nation, especially since the sale of spirits had been prohibited, was going to be disorganized totally. The campaign begun by Minister Protopopoff against the two unions of the Zemstvos and municipalities, added to the general discontent. The two unions had taken care of the hundreds of thousands of wounded soldiers whom they took from the lines behind the battlefields to distribute them in hospitals created by these unions all over Russia. In addition, they organized in the rear of the fighting lines medical supplies and necessities for the army, as well as tents, hot baths and feeding stations, and had won the sympathies of the army by their continual care for the needs of the soldiers."

"Protopopoff decided to destroy these unions. He prohibited their general meetings, and ordered that at every committee meeting an officer of police (who might report everything to the Germans) should be present."

"This continual intercourse between the nation and the army explains why the army so rapidly joined the revolt."

Several coal beds outcrop along the Chikoloon river in this unit and constitute probably the best coal showing so far discovered in the Matanuska field.

CZAR SENDS LAST WORD

Calls Upon Russians to Support New Ruler.

BY UNITED PRESS. LEADS WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

PETROGRAD, March 17.—Czar Nicholas, abdicated ruler of all Russia, has issued this manifesto:

To all our faithful subjects, it is best known in the days of the great struggle against a foreign enemy who has been endeavoring for three years to crush our country that it has pleased God to send Russia further painful trial.

Internal troubles threatened fatally to affect the further progress of this obstinate war and to affect Russia's destinies.

Her heroic army, the happiness of the people, the whole future of the beloved fatherland, demand that the war should be conducted at all costs to a victorious end.

The cruel enemy is making his last efforts. The moment is coming when our valiant army, in concert with our glorious allies, will finally overthrow the enemy.

In these decisive days we realize we owe to the people the most united and organization of all forces for realization of a rapid victory.

Therefore, in agreement with the Imperial Duma, we recognize it is for the country's good that we should abdicate the crown and lay down supreme power.

Not wishing to separate ourselves from our beloved son, we bequeath the heritage to our brother, Grand Duke Michael, with our blessing for the future throne, that he may govern it in accordance with the national representatives and take inviolate oath to them in the name of our well beloved fatherland.

We call all faithful sons of the fatherland to fulfill their sacred patriotic duty of obeying the Czar at this painful moment of national trials, and to aid him, together with the nation's representatives, to conduct the Russian state in the way of prosperity and glory.

May God help Russia!

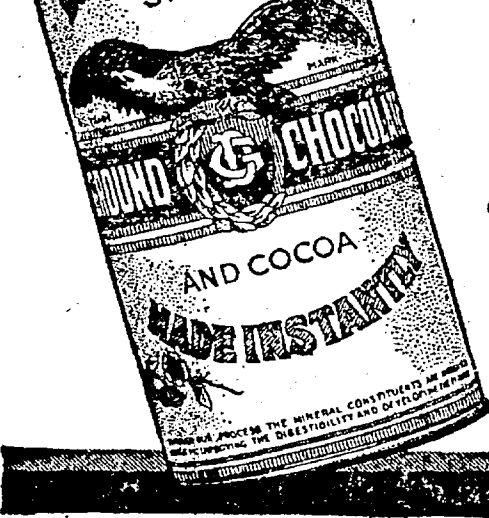

Coal Deposit Set Aside for Railway

SEWARD, Alaska, March 17.—The Matanuska coal deposit on Chikoloon river, located by A. C. Frost of Chicago, which resulted in his being charged with fraudulent entry, tried and acquitted, and later tried again and acquitted on the charge of tampering with a juror in the first trial, has been set aside by the government for use by the Alaskan Engineering Commission on the United States railroad. Frost's application for patent was denied several years ago.

This "coal leasing unit" is known as No. 12, and has been reserved among the tracts offered by the government under the leasing plan of the Department of the Interior.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitue

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." Note how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c.

CHINA AND THE WAR.

When the United States government suggested to other neutral nations that they follow its lead in severing diplomatic relations with Germany, it was not the aim of the President to form another league of nations to take the offensive against the central powers, or to lend aid to the present enemies of Germany. It was the sole purpose of the President to line up all neutrals in a joint protest against the policy of ruthless disregard of international law by Germany, and the unlawful acts that are menacing the lives of neutrals.

China is the only nation so far to follow the lead of this country. As previously explained, none of the other neutrals had pursued their peaceful means of safeguarding their rights to the limit of exhaustion, as had the United States, and it was but natural that they should desire first to try everything short of open rupture.

But China, so far as is known, had few important complaints against submarine warfare and it has never been stated that her diplomatic efforts had met with rebuff at Berlin, if any were exerted. This is not essential, it is true, to justifying the action of the Peking government in severing diplomatic relations with Berlin. The manifesto to resume indiscriminate warfare on neutral shipping and non-combatant lives was cause for even a more emphatic protest.

The fact remains, however, that the Chinese government has not availed itself of all reasonable means of preventing a rupture of relations with a friendly power. This is a bad example in itself and were it not for the extraordinary nature of the present situation, every great power would join in rebuking such action. It is also obvious that China did not adopt this course because of the request and the example of the United States. Entente powers have done vastly more to influence China to abandon neutrality; the United States has merely played into their hands by providing an opportunity to disguise their intrigues at Peking and to throw the cloak of decency around an act that would otherwise be condemned.

China has really entered the war on the side of the entente and has not joined with the United States in protesting against the disregard of the law of nations. Her participation will not greatly add to Germany's tasks during the war, but it has consigned the peaceful enterprises of Germany and Austria-Hungary in the Far East to a dismal and doubtful future.

"SERVING SENTIMENT"

Apparently there is a fairly large proportion of the people that think sentiment is more important than service. This is particularly noticeable in the controversies in the State legislature over proposed laws; there appeals to sentiment, as against reason and legitimate ideas of public service, not only reach inordinate heights, but go to almost indecent lengths in trying to convert ignorance and the emotional side of man to the interest of sentiment.

As an example there is the Gelder fight on vaccination and the compulsory safeguards against the spread of contagious diseases in the public schools. In the first instance, he has surrounded his anti-vaccination fight with all sorts of hideous and revolting untruths to confuse the public mind, to the absolute disregard of the service to society in general through compelling every possible precaution against smallpox epidemics. In the second place, he supports his argument against the compulsory medical inspection of school children by the spurious plea that he wants the parents and guardians of children to say who their physicians shall be. Both arguments are false and aim to decrease the efficiency of public service through the exploitation of appeals to sentiment and the emotions which self-seeking individuals have prepared. In the current monthly bulletin of the State Board of Health it is stated that the health officer of Oakland, by excluding from the public schools all persons who gave any indication of illness, prevented recently an epidemic of scarlet fever. Mr. Gelder would make such beneficial precaution absolutely impossible.

Another sentimental and emotional campaign to be observed in the fight against the bill authorizing the sale of unclaimed animals in the public pounds to official and recognized institutions of medical research. The society for the prevention of cruelty to animals and the anti-vivisection society are flooding the State with exaggerated tales of indiscriminate slaughter and torture of animals in research institutes, and their agents are lobbying with the members of the legislature and circularizing all the newspapers in an effort to preserve sentiment regarding animals at the expense of human service and the promotion of scientific knowledge. The pathetic part about these emotional efforts is that the "antis" display no conscience about libeling and slandering research work. They show no sign of knowing or recognizing anything about the value to humanity of the serums, antitoxins and vaccines which have come out of such work. It probably would be impossible to convince these pleaders that if by killing all the dogs and cats in the country, claimed and unclaimed, a cure for infantile paralysis could be found the loss of the animals would be worth while. No more would it be possible to convince many of them that the life of a child is more valuable than the life of a pet animal.

What is needed most in these issues is a calm consideration of the exact facts. If unnecessary experimentation is being conducted with animals the practice may be regulated, but the legislature should not deny the research institutions the use of such animals as may be necessary for proper and legitimate purposes. Underneath the surface of pompously paraded sentiment and the display, by those who have the time and temperament, of deep affection for pets, there is a stronger, nevertheless silent need to be met. It is the progress of humanity to better health of mind and body, to better conditions, to knowledge and happiness. If the self-sufficient sentimentalist tries to stand in the way he must be brushed aside.

CHARGE FAILURE TO LOBBY.

San Francisco's municipal lobby on the naval base project, through its advance agent and spokesman, City Clerk Dunnigan, is trying to sidestep the blame for delay in securing the appropriation from Congress for this important defense unit by charging it to others. Lobby Spokesman Dunnigan says the failure to get the $1,500,000 appropriation was due to the antagonism of Senator Works and "the ill-timed plea for Mare Island by Representative Curry."

This is poppycock, pure and simple. That Mr. Curry spoke favorably for the appropriation to increase the facilities at Mare Island was not a sign that he was opposed to the new naval base on San Francisco bay. The Mare Island increase was recommended by the Helm naval base commission, just as was the new naval site. It came before the House because the conference committee could raise no reasonable objection to it. Mr. Curry spoke for it because he was given the opportunity. Mr. Curry is for any legitimate project to advance the interest of California. He is not moved by petty sectional jealousies. Had the new naval base appropriation amendment been presented on the floor of the House he would have championed it just as earnestly as he did the Mare Island appropriation. His long record in Congress is a sufficient refutation to the ridiculous charge of the spokesman for San Francisco's municipal lobby.

The main reason the new naval base appropriation was not accepted by the House was because this municipal lobby, of which City Clerk Dunnigan was one of the spokesmen, adopted petty political tactics as their program and tried to override the decision, whatever it might have been, of the distinguished commission of naval officers appointed by Congress to select the naval base site.

President Wilson sent the nomination of Assistant Surgeon Grayson to be a rear admiral of the navy to the new Senate after it had been refused confirmation by the last filibustering Senate. This act spoke well for the President's capacity for personal friendship, notwithstanding that it may have ignored the temperament of the people. The new Senate yielded and voted Dr. Grayson confirmation. But the Senate refused ratification of the $25,000,000 treaty of apology with Colombia, and that un-American document has been withdrawn for revision before it is again submitted to Congress. The Senate is thus revealed as being willing, after due persuasion, to compromise in a matter of specially rewarding the President's personal physician for the performance of his legal duties, but a trifle more correct in the matter of national dignity and honor.

IMPOVERISHED ADULT LIFE.

(Chicago Tribune.)

The need of censorship is directly traceable to the manner of life which has created the need of apartment houses. When most of us lived in houses the children played in the back yard with the dog. Now that we live in apartment houses there is no back yard and the dog is a lap dog. The children are in the community and the community has to be regulated for them. It is sufficiently obvious.

But the necessity of interference with the private amusement of adults for the benefit of the children is nevertheless irksome. It is infuriating to many an adult to read of three or four public spirited women and several of a motion picture forbidding any one to look at it. It is because the adult realizes that life is being impoverished for him by censorship, necessary or not, that he opposes censorship of anything which he enjoys. He cannot see why even if cities are becoming nurseries his diet should be modified milk. In a community which offers no interest to any one over fourteen years old, where every enjoyment is surrounded with prohibitions for the benefit of morons and epileptics, there is no use growing up.

Adults will some time rebel against a system which offers no rewards for self-restraint and does not open up a wider life for wisdom and sophistication. If we are to destroy adult life in order to bring children safely to it we shall have failed stupidly, for no such sacrifices will have gained us nothing. We shall be all dressed up morally—with no place to go and nothing interesting to do.

Unsympathetic item from the Nevada City News: "Peanut roaster blew up in Chico the other day and put out an eye of the proprietor. One eye is enough for most peanut vendors, as they only fill the sack half full, anyway."

There is an account of a young man who follows the sea, but concluded to marry. The story really begins when he came into court a month later for a divorce. It seems that his disillusionment ensued when his bride would not let him whistle or smoke. That may not be cause for divorce, but it is a competent signal that married life is not all it may sometimes seem.

SPIRIT OF THE STATE PRESS

In line with the work of the women's clubs, several other clubs of the county have taken up the work of tree planting. At Rocklin the Women's Improvement Club has arranged for the observance of a tree-planting day March 21, when it will plant Oriental trees at the east and west limits of the city. A recent announcement in the Recreation Magazine is that Dr. Zane Grey recently wrote from Florida as follows: "I caught a whopper of a bone fish yesterday. Say! Talk about sport! He is the stiffest and hardest fighting fish I have met." Grey fished at Catalina last summer, and his next story, entitled "Two Fights With Swordfish," will be, we believe, the most dramatic fishing story he has written. Incidentally, Grey's brother was along and witnessed those two fights—his first experience. At one stage he was offered the rod. "Not on your life!" he exclaimed. There is no more keen and fever sportsman coasting the coast than Dr. Zane Grey, and he has become a leading authority on swordfishing.—Avalon Islander.

A search through the different works on fishes of the Pacific coast has revealed a number of differences of opinion, much theory, and little fact. It is high time some competent authority was instructed to revise the classification of our fishes. With the ever-growing canners industry, demand, and the information desired by anglers, it would seem as though the government should do some investigating. Much money has been spent to secure data on the fishes of the rivers and lakes, but what about our ocean game fish—the edible fish of the sea—the valuable food supply of the Pacific coast?—Avalon Islander.

WHY NOT COME TO CALIFORNIA?

IN JUSTICE TO COLONEL WEINSTOCK.

To the Editor of The Tribune:

In your issue of March 14, in an editorial on the state market commissioner, we find a statement that Colonel Weinstock has openly disregarded and violated the law; that he has done this contemptuously, designedly and flagrantly, and, further, that he has violated and disregarded the market commission act.

Relying on your sense of justice, I call to your attention the following facts which I feel it your duty to publish:

Replying to your statement that Colonel Weinstock has violated the state commission market act, I quote from section 3 of the act, as follows:

"The commission market director shall establish and maintain in all cities and towns of the state, and when the conditions are in his judgment most suitable, markets for the receiving, care, sale and distribution of the agricultural, fishery, dairy and farm products of California."

The act, therefore, makes it the duty of the state market commissioner to establish markets only when and where in his judgment the conditions are most suitable. In other words, he is to use his best judgment as to the establishment of state markets.

Colonel Weinstock has stated time and time again that he does not believe that the present conditions justify the establishment of state markets. Therefore, if he should establish state markets at the present time, believing as he does, he would be violating his oath of office as a state officer. Yours very truly,

PHILIP S. EHRLICH.
 San Francisco, March 15, 1917.

To the Editor of The Tribune:

The municipal market project of Mayor Davie has provoked an attack from Colonel Irish upon the mayor and, incidentally, upon the idea of establishing the market. I hold that a municipal market where all sorts of foodstuffs can be bought at as near cost as possible is a crying need, and the mayor is entitled to credit for suggesting it and for trying to establish it.

His plan as it is commonly understood is not to duplicate the present worthless public markets, but to establish one, under proper management, where all sorts of foodstuffs can be bought as cheaply as possible. This would involve a public abattoir and the carrying of a complete stock of staple groceries.

Everyone who has studied the question thoroughly knows that meats are being sold to the consumer at a price outrageously out of proportion to that at which cattle, sheep and hogs are bought from the stockmen. With steers selling, after a severe shrinkage to reduce weight, at 8½ cents a pound on the hoof, there is no legitimate reason why the consumer buying direct from the slaughterers should pay more than 15 cents a pound for the choice cuts and 12½ cents for the coarser meats. The same is true of pork and mutton, in which the shrinkage in weight is far less than in the case of cattle.

Under existing conditions, the wholesaler must pay expenses and make a profit, after which the retailer must take his toll. The result is that the consumer is forced to pay a price which is outrageously high or to dispense with meat upon his table.

Groceries are sold at a price calculated to meet cost, operating expenses, allowance for unpaid accounts and a considerable profit to both wholesaler and retailer. A municipal store buying and selling for cash and dealing directly from the manufacturer to the consumer would only

NO FRIEND OF CHILDHOOD

Dr. Maria Montessori of Rome is a justly famous woman. She is internationally known as an author and educator, and she has given her name to a system of elementary training that has supplemented kindergarten methods, and in some places supplanted them. She has been hailed as a more modern Froebel.

A few days ago Dr. Montessori gave an address in Boston at a meeting arranged by the New England Montessori Association. And in this address she foretold the coming of the time when toys will be unknown and when children will find enjoyment in useful things adapted to their mental level. She said many other interesting things, but this is the thing that sticks in the memory—and at which the normal instinct strongly protests.

If there is going to be such a prole and totally utilitarian age as Dr. Montessori predicts, let us give thanks that we shall in all probability not live to see it. When children are taught to find all their pleasure in doing "useful" things this world is going to be a pretty drab old place. With dolls and kites and woolly lambs and hoops and jumping-jacks abolished, Santa Claus will shut up his shop for good. Christmas trees will become obsolete, the glaring sunlight of realism will drive the elves and fairies and soft, gray shadows from the wonderland of childhood; the imagination will be strangled at its birth, and the very springs of poetry and fancy will be drained dry to clear the ground for a turnip field.

It is fortunate that men—the children of a larger growth—have their toys and playthings that no famine edition of Thomas Gradgrind can take away from them. They have canvases and paints and brushes, and the aesthetic sense that knows that beauty is its own excuse for being, and that it is as important in the scheme of life as the "useful" things thereof. To substitute useful tools for toys, however, would be to murder this aesthetic instinct at the point of its tenderest growth.

It is pleasant to be able to doubt whether substitution of that sort can ever take place. You can't fool a child. You may lead him to a factory and tell him that picking knots out of cotton threads is play, but he won't believe you after he has done it for a day or two. And after he has done it a year or two, he will not be a child at all; but a premature old man with a shriveled heart and a dead soul. Froebel was right, and Montessori is off the track. Dolls and kites are better.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"How much are calories? I want to buy 500," a young woman inquired of the floorwalker.

"Calories?" he replied. "I don't believe—500—I doubt if we have that many in stock. However, inquire at the dress goods counter."

"Have you any calories in stock?" she asked the clerk.

"Calories? What's that?" The clerk for once looked puzzled.

"Well, I don't know. But I know this wouldn't be the department. Calories, you know, are something to eat. I went to a food lecture the other day and they said to eat at least 500 calories a day. I suppose it's a vegetable."

"I suppose so," said the clerk.—Columbus Dispatch.

You've sealed the rugged mountain-side

To many grassy bowers;

You've scanned the meadows far and wide

Among the dainty flowers;

And on the hill or in the dell

Your echoes ever rolling,

Betrayed the place, old rusty bell,

Where all the herd was strolling.

And when erratic sounds of thine

Continually were flowing,

Oh, then it was the busy kine

The herbage green were mowing;

But when you cast a steady ring

Alongside the hillside tending,

Then for the cool, refreshing spring

The thirsty herd was wending.

MILITIA MAY BE KEPT BY
NEW ORDERSRelaxation of "Full Strength"
Order Is Expected for Time
Being by National GuardsPrecautionary Instructions Are Issued by War Department
Telling Mobilization Proposal

That the precautionary instructions sent out by the War Department to the state adjutant-generals regarding the use of the national guard in the event of war may have the possibility that A and F companies of the 10th Infantry and Battery B of the 10th Artillery may be mustered out on April 1, unless they are brought up to the minimum strength by that date, is the opinion of Major Ralph J. Faneuf. Although he has as yet received no instructions from the adjutant-general or any official interpretation of the instructions issued by the federal government, he interprets the move toward preparedness as an indication of a greater leniency toward the incomplete companies.

"I believe that the present crisis in international affairs with its threat of the possibility of war is making the department relax the strictness of the orders issued about the immediate completion of all companies to full strength," he said. "This is, of course, my personal opinion, and is not justified by any word that I have received from my superior officer. So far no communication on the subject has reached me."

DETAILS ARE GIVEN.

The circular of instructions issued by the militia bureau of the War Department gives specific details as to what shall be done by the National Guard organization in each state in the event of a call to the colors. Mobilization under the plan outlined would be conducted by the regular army departmental commanders, who would be authorized to select sites for mobilization camps and to "make provision for shelter, recruitment and the formation of the recruit training battalions in the event of war."

The circular also makes clear that there is to be no status for the National Guard in the federal service hereafter. No individual will be accepted who has not taken the prescribed oath, will be accepted and given proper credit for the time served in their existing enlistment contract in the organized militia.

NO MOVE.

The War Department specifically states that these instructions shall not be taken as a warlike move, but merely as precautionary. This policy is understood to be the reason why mobilization of the navy has not been ordered. Some navy officials have favored that step, but it has not met with the approval of the administration.

Huge Stockyard
Deal Consummated

Purchase of the Grayson, Owen Company stockyards and slaughterhouses in Emeryville, by the State and Thomas W. Corder, million-dollar meat packers of this city, at a price rumored at approximately $1,000,000 is announced. The deal will be completed within a few days and the new combination will go into effect May 1. The new corporation will be known as the Grayson, Owen Packing Company.

The Grayson, Owen corporation, one of the oldest in the West, was organized by George W. Grayson and W. J. Owen in 1872 and was incorporated under its present name in 1900. J. W. Phillips has been president for thirty-five years and Irving C. Lewis vice-president for more than twenty years. Other officials of the company are: P. B. Lynch, secretary, and J. C. Mitchell, treasurer.

Under the tentative agreement Phillips and his associates will retain their interests in the stockyards, packing houses and properties at Emeryville, but will retain their other holdings, including a 20,000-acre cattle ranch in San Luis Obispo county. The Grayson, Owen plant adjoins the U. M. Slater Company yards at the foot of Sixty-fifth street, in Emeryville. It is understood that the two properties will be combined and that Thomas W. Corder, dealer in hides, wool and sheepskins, will handle the by-products at the Corder tannery, Sixty-seventh and Bay streets.

STEPHENS FINDS
HE HAS BIG JOB

STATE CAPITOL, SACRAMENTO, March 17.—Governor William D. Stephens is discovering very rapidly that it is no boy's job to drive the Johnson political machine through the boulder-strewn alfalfa fields of California.

The political battle seems to have been knocked clear over when Johnson left the state capitol and there is nothing doing here but a loud buzzing.

Since Thursday the legislature has been merely marking time. No one pretends to do any work. Everyone is concerned with the future—with the lineup and the battle of 1918. In some quarters it is declared that Johnson has positively gotten behind Mayor Ralph for governor and will knife Stephens in the primaries.

Their point, but that the appointment of Al McCabe to the job of insurance commissioner, with his office in San Francisco, is prima facie evidence of his deal, and that McCabe will devote himself more to the rebuilding of the mayor's candidacy than to the business of insurance during the next year and a half.

The impending railroad strike has given Governor Stephens something unlooked-for to complete about. Should the California railroads be tied up the issue will confront him squarely, and more than one governor has come up triumphant, or has gone to political death, during a great strike.

Labor is so strong in California, politically that any strike situation cannot be successfully handled here as it has been in other states.

The governor is expected to deliver his message to the legislature early next week. The Senate did not meet today at all and the assembly merely attended to some routine matters and voted on a few bills.

Rominger Bill Is Urged at Hearing

SACRAMENTO, March 17.—The Rominger anti-saloon and ardent spirits bill was given a public hearing yesterday afternoon by the senate public morals committee. Action on the measure will not be taken until early next week. The chief arguments for the passage of the measure, made by H. P. Stoll, secretary of the California Grape Protective Association, and Justin McGrath, managing editor of the San Francisco Examiner. Stoll said that the wine growers had grown weary of the steady round of wet and dry elections and had endorsed the Rominger bill, as they thought it would definitely settle the state's liquor problem.

McGrath urged the passage of the measure because it would abolish saloons and ardent spirits and tend to reduce intoxication and its attendant evils of poverty and misery. L. R. Rogers, a grower of wine from Colusa county, also spoke for the bill.

The opposition was represented by A. A. Denison, of the Alameda County Property-owners' Protective Association. Ron. Henry Ryan of the Trades Union Liberty League, and Newton E. Clendenen, of the California Wet Federation. Ryan said that in addition to destroying the occupations of thousands of workmen, the Rominger bill would not settle the liquor questions.

Electrocution Bill
Killed in Committee

SACRAMENTO, March 17.—The Goetting electrocution measure, which aimed to replace capital punishment by hanging at San Quentin and Folsom prison exclusively, has been killed in the assembly committee on prisons and reformatories.

Recommendation for passage has been accorded the Morris Sunday evening bill by the labor and capital committee of the assembly. The bill provides that work on Sunday shall not be carried on in stores, offices, mines, factories, barber shops and saloons. It excepts the sale of medicines and operation of hotels, restaurants, places of amusement, daily papers and other "necessary or emergency" pursuits.

Assembly Adopts Co.
Government Measures

SACRAMENTO, March 17.—The Assembly has today adopted with a rush, including: By Carlsson—Granting additional deputies and increases of salary of officers of Fresno county.

By Williams—Fixing jury fees and increasing salaries in Marin county.

By Kyleberg—Fixing salaries at $50 a month for justices of the peace in Madera county townships outside the city of Madera.

Stephens Asks About

The lecture will be given under the auspices of Second church and will be open to the public.

POETIC MUSIC IS WELL INTERPRETED

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Although one hundred and twenty-six years separate the dates of composition of Gluck's "Iphigenie in Aulide" and Arthur Foot's "Four Character pieces" after the Rubiyat of Omar Khayyam, their juxtaposition of this week's program of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra brought out with vividness certain hints of modernity in the score of the operatic pioneer. Passing dissonances in divided strings were the most prominent of these confirmations of the adage that there is nothing new under the sun. But while the validity of the saying was sustained by elemental likenesses, it was shaken by contrasts dissimilar in atmospheric treatment.

If there is one state of mind which we moderns seem unable to attain, it is the grandiose and needlessly formal attitude characteristic of the eighteenth century. The existence of the modern mind, which makes it so difficult for us to read with patience the longeurs of Rameau, Alfred and Samuel Johnson. And this divergence of viewpoint necessarily affects our enjoyment of the music of that period, which must be colored as is Gluck's by the theatre and pompous conventions of that age. It is a tribute to the genius of Gluck that his melodic charm and earnestness of expression surmount those temperamental barriers.

ABSENCE OF FORMALITY.

In Mozart's "Jupiter" symphony, composed at approximately the same time as the "Iphigenie" overture, there is an utter absence of stilted formality. It is one of those masterpieces which defy dates. Alfred Hertz and his players read it for us with a joyousness as complete and untrammelled as the mood in which it was composed. I am sure, who would that it might be repeated at once in all its sparkling beauty, and in the least the slow movement which is one of the loveliest melodic miniatures in existence.

It is interesting to note that Arthur Foot's "Character pieces" were composed at the time when Omar Khayyam—plus Fitzgerald—was enjoying a popular vogue. It was a time when the music of the East was being introduced to our ears, and when the mood in which it was composed, I am sure, who would that it might be repeated at once in all its sparkling beauty, and in the least the slow movement which is one of the loveliest melodic miniatures in existence.

WELL TRANSLATED.

The divagatory theme which opens the composition in the solo clarinet and flute is in the great measure a admirable translation of the musing, half-sighing utterance of Omar. Of the four sketches depicted in the program, the most striking and persistent in the mind is the Persian version of "all is vanity," a rhythmic riot deeply ironic in mood and glowing with a low howl of despair. The music, which was used in past performances and when parodied by the scherzo appeared in the magazines.

There is a delicate, delicate, however, in Foot's treatment of the impressionist, revealed from reading the disillusioned and musical literature as a permanent element to the Rubiyat, a total footnote in commentary. Without being in the least reminiscent of Rimski-Korsakov's "Scheherazade" suite, it shows a similar coloring and a similar interpretation of Oriental process of thought.

Climb "on Wagon" Is Cause of Disaster

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—E. J. Flanagan, traveling salesman of Columbus, O., residing at the St. Francis hotel, celebrated St. Patrick's eve too generously and too ardently last night, and as he was about to enter his hotel he was struck by a car, which he took a seat on the water wagon. He slipped an automobile truck of the Associated Oil Company, which from a distance looked like the sprinkling cart, usually found in large oil fields. Flanagan did not hesitate. He proceeded to climb up on the wagon. The rounded tank was not conducive to obtaining a good foothold and he fell backward to the pavement, fracturing his left shoulder. St. Patrick's morning found him at the Central Emergency hospital.

Says Dead Student
Betrayed Confidence

BLACKSBURG, Va., March 17.—Counsel for Professor Charles E. Vawter, accused of killing Stockton Hath Jr., issued a statement, saying that "after a thorough investigation of the facts surrounding the tragedy, the evidence will disclose a betrayal of friendship and confidence exposed."

This is the first statement from any member or representative of the Vawter family since young Hath was fatally shot in the Vawter home early last Tuesday morning. Hath died Thursday, and Professor Vawter gave new bonds yesterday after waiving a preliminary hearing.

Hath was a student in the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, where Professor Vawter is a member of the faculty.

A Rank Falsehood

Interviewed today, Pat Kisch said: "There is absolutely not one iota of truth in the statement that Governor Johnson will take dinner at the Saddle Rock tonight. It is true we will serve an exceptionally good repast, nevertheless the Governor will not be here. It is possible, though not probable, that he may drop in Sunday. We serve a special dinner including squab chicken; the tariff is $1.25, less than you could get the same meal for at home.—Advertisement."

The acid test of contracts of employment by which an insurance company secures the services of general and special agents is being applied before a jury in Judge William H. Donahue's department of the Superior Court in an action which, after three weeks' trial, will probably be submitted to the jury Tuesday or Wednesday. The California State Life Insurance Company of Sacramento is plaintiff in an action against L. D. McCarthy, an agent, in a suit for an accounting, while McCarthy is plaintiff in a counter-action in which he asks $11,000 damages for breach of contract.

The general insurance practice of discounting and selling notes given for premiums by persons securing insurance is involved for the first time in any state court. According to the contract of employment, the company forbids the practice, although it is alleged that insurance agents dispose of notes and have them presented to the insured when due by some local bank which has accepted the note at a discount. A mass of evidence has been submitted to the jury already indicating that the company facilitated the practice of discounting notes by making deposits at banks throughout the state so that agents working in the territory could dispose of the paper.

The case is being followed closely by insurance agents who work under similar contracts. The form being tested is one universally used and is unlimited in time of duration. This constitutes an optional agreement, declares the company, which can be terminated at any time by any party to it. McCarthy alleges that he was dismissed thirty-four days before the time when he would have been entitled to renewal commissions. Under the contract, if he remained with the company for two years, he would have had a right to such renewals. Twenty-three months after his employment he was dismissed by the company, on the road. Attorney C. C. Boynton appears for McCarthy, John Sloan, attorney for the State Insurance Commission, appearing for the company.

"SPEEDY" SWIFT
MUST COMPLETE
JAIL SENTENCE

Twelve days—from sunrise to sunset—and from sunset to sunrise—will Harry McKean Swift endure life in the county jail. And at the end thereof he will win his liberty. But, according to the decision of the county parole board, consisting of Sheriff Frank Barnett, District Attorney Hynes and Chief of Police Walter J. Petersen, Swift—speed maniac, flyer of flywheels, wearer of pink-silk pajamas, impresario of prison consorts—cannot have a parole. He has served thirteen days in a twenty-five-day sentence for fracturing the county speed laws in the clerk's desk with a thermore. The fracture was gross and Judge G. S. Fitzgerald said that rural community slipped him a fine of $150 and twenty-five days in jail. Swift is serving the twenty-five days.

Today—the thirteenth—his petition for parole was heard, and determined. The determination was adverse to Swift's best interests.

It developed that when Swift was fined $150 by the justice of the peace he slapped the gold on the clerk's desk with a thermore. "That's easy!"

Judge Fitzgerald drew a long breath and added: "And twenty-five days in jail." That wasn't so easy.

Youthful Maid
Killed; Seattle
Rich Man Held

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

SEATTLE, March 17.—Eugene Erickson, assistant manager of the Border Line Transportation Company and widely known in shipping circles, is held in the city jail today pending investigation of the shooting to death, this morning of Miss Abigail Howe, aged 19, maid at the Erickson home.

Erickson telephoned to the police this morning that Miss Howe had committed suicide in his bedroom last night, using his pistol, because he had reproached her for misconduct with another man. According to the story told to the police by Erickson, there had been a party at the house last night in the absence of Mrs. Erickson, who is visiting in California.

Erickson says he caught Miss Howe during the party in the embrace of a young man, a guest of the party, and after the party Erickson delivered a moral lecture to the girl. Erickson says the girl retorted that her conduct with the young man guest was no worse than Erickson's own with a young woman guest, and became greatly excited, finally drawing out his loaded revolver from between the mattresses of his bed. She then shot and killed herself, he said.

DERGE CLOSELY QUESTIONED

The witness was closely questioned on his valuations of property within and without the city limits of Oakland, belonging to the East Bay Water Company. The land on which the water company's office is located at Ninth and Broadway is valued at $1000 a foot for 37 feet. Adjacent property belonging to A. Henry he valued at $5,000. He declared he was sure the latter holding could be purchased for that amount, which was considerably less than the value placed on it by Woodward.

WATER LAND
UNDERVALUED
SAYS DERGELake Chabot Property Worth
$600,000, Declares Witness;
Taxed Far Below EstimateWitness States County Put the
Times Less Than Valuation

That land near Lake Chabot, valued by the East Bay Water Company's experts at $1,900,000 which he had appraised at less than $600,000, was valued by the county of Alameda at from one to five times less than his figures for taxation purposes, was the startling statement of A. R. Derge, valuation expert for the city of Oakland, who has been on the witness stand before the State Railroad Commission, in its inquiry into east bay water rates for the past three days.

Derge's statement came at the conclusion of yesterday's testimony on a direct examination, after he had been cross-examined by Attorney Wiggington. Creed, chief counsel for the water company on his methods in arriving at valuation figures. Derge declared he had gone to the county assessor's office and made an examination of the tax records on the 5500 acres of land in question in person.

As a result of Derge's declaration, it is highly probable that county officials will be summoned before the commission to substantiate or disprove Derge's statements, and to give their own valuations on the property in question, and the methods employed in arriving at those figures.

Derge also threw a bombshell into the commission's proceedings with the declaration near the close of the session yesterday that Frank E. Woodward, water expert on land values, had greatly under-valued all of the property of the water company, not in actuality, but in the amount of the land in question, which is of no use and which the company would consent to have stricken from its list of water possibilities.

LOCK & LOCK

The Oakland Launch & Turbopump Company was busy this morning moving a fleet of codfish schooners to the Union Iron Works, Alameda, where they will be placed on the drydock to be cleaned and painted. They were the Sequoia, Galileo and Vega of the Union Fish Company, and will sail from here on April 3 for Behring Sea codfish. The three craft will take 150 men away for the summer.

Another steam schooner has changed ownership, but will continue to operate at Oakland harbor from Oregon. She came to G. Lindauer, and was purchased by the Pacific Mill Lumber Company. She was built at Aberdeen, Wash., and is a year old, and has a cargo capacity of 60,000 feet of lumber. Wilson Brothers of Gray's Harbor, Wash., were her former owners.

The schooner Shasta, with 900,000 feet of lumber from Columbia River, arrived at the yards of E. K. Wood Co., 2nd and Franklin, this morning after a passage of 72 hours. Captain Langley, who is master, and who lives in Oakland, was a surprised man upon his arrival. He was told that his father-in-law, Charles Iverson, retired mariner, was dead and was to be buried at 2 o'clock today. Langley was first officer. Iverson twenty years ago, and both are well known in this port and along the Pacific coast.

The schooner Harvester arrived at Honolulu today with a cargo of rice. She had a very rough passage, losing the part of her deckload, and came limping into port on a starboard list. The Harvester was formerly a bark rig, but a few months ago was sold to the Sunset Lumber Company of Oakland, and converted into a schooner at the Hanlon ship yard.

The Japanese steamer Ayaha Maru has been chartered by Mitsui & Co. to load a cargo of steel at Oakland and Yokohama. She is a new vessel, and will be ready to take a cargo of steel to the Pacific coast from the east by the Southern government for ship building.

CAPTAIN WALTERS SELLS SCHOONER. Captain Walters of Oakland has sold the gasoline schooner Cheto to the E. J. Williamson Company who took possession of the craft today. Cheto was formerly in the coastwise lumber trade and is equipped with two 50-horse power engines. She is now being fitted out for a cargo of lumber to Los Angeles in about a week.

Haviland Brothers, riggers and wreckers, are having a new tugboat, the Pacific, which will be the largest on the Pacific coast, and will be used in salvage work. The tug is 150 feet long, 20 feet wide and 12 feet deep. Her beam will lift 75 tons dead weight. The firm expects to have the new craft in commission by July 1.

The Norwegian steamer Canto, built at this harbor, and which took a cargo to Havana, has arrived at New York, where she is loading freight for this port. She has been chartered by Williams, Diamond & Company. She will come here via the Panama canal.

The schooner Isaac Reed, formerly a ship of the coast water trade, is on her journey to British Columbia in tow of the tug Hercules, for a cargo of coal consigned to Oakland. The tug and schooner were made in Oakland harbor. She is due to arrive here next Friday with 300 tons of coal.

Change of masters in United States custom house, Captain Martin Thompson, ship Star of Oak.
